

Banking Litigation

Banking litigation is inherently multifaceted. It's crucial to have a collaborative, vigilant, future-minded team of trial and appellate advocates who have litigated disputes before all levels of court and in national and international forums.

With roots dating back almost 100 years, our Banking Litigation Group has played a role in some of the most preeminent cases in Canadian history, setting precedents that continue to govern banking and commerce.

We represent clients in a range of disputes, including:

- bills of exchange
- letters of credit and guarantee
- credit and debit card fraud
- mortgage and other security enforcement
- fraud
- breach of fiduciary duty
- negligent misrepresentation, business or lending practices
- employment issues
- breach of confidentiality
- transactional errors
- lender liability for environmental contamination
- credit references
- investment advice
- receiverships
- wrongful receiverships and improvident realizations
- creditor arrangements
- construction financing

As a collaborative, multidisciplinary firm, our team offers comprehensive service by working with related areas, including:

- financial services
- insolvency and restructuring
- commercial fraud
- corporate
- commercial transactions
- technology
- environmental law

We serve banks and financial institutions across Canada.
