Zosia is a patent agent trainee practising in our Intellectual Property Group, with a focus on patent drafting and patent prosecution.

Zosia is a chemist by training, and has more than eight years' experience in academic laboratories, including in organic synthesis, natural products, and computational chemistry. Her PhD work focused on free radical autoxidation of hydrocarbons and the study of antioxidant compounds that slow the process. In particular, her research addressed the mechanism of cholesterol autoxidation and its links to degenerative disease.
