

Federal Financial Institutions Legislative and Regulatory Reporter - February 2026

April 02, 2026

The Reporter provides a monthly summary of Canadian federal legislative and regulatory developments of relevance to federally regulated financial institutions. It does not address Canadian provincial financial services legislative and regulatory developments. In addition, purely technical and administrative changes (such as changes to reporting forms) are not covered.

Office of the Superintendent of Financial Institutions (OSFI)
February 26, 2026	Targeted Fast-Track Approvals Framework for New Entrants OSFI has published a streamlined, targeted fast-track approvals framework for new entrants. OSFI intends to modernize its approach to how specific entities enter the federally regulated financial system. The framework is	Framework expected to launch in June 2026.

	expected to launch in June 2026 for eligible applicants; it would be offered to the following entities: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Provincial credit unions that are seeking continuance as a federal credit union; • Entities with technological ly innovative or emerging banking models – for example, fintechs or crypto-asset custodians – seeking to incorporate as a bank or as a federally regulated trust and loan company. Other types of entities would continue to follow existing guides and processes; OSFI will use insights from this targeted approach to inform a broader rollout in the future.
February 24, 2026	Update on Capital Requirements for Federally Regulated Property and Casualty	Effective February 24, 2026.

	Insurers – Letter OSFI has announced that, effective immediately, it is reducing capital requirements for domestic infrastructure debt. This applies to Canadian property and casualty insurance companies that are not mortgage insurance companies, and foreign property and casualty companies operating in Canada on a branch basis, collectively referred to as property and casualty insurers. The capital reductions are laid out in Appendix 1 to the letter.
February 19, 2026	Registered Pension Plans (RPP) and Other Types of Savings Plans – Coverage in Canada (2023) This article shows coverage in Canada by Registered Pension Plans (RPPs) and other savings vehicles that contribute to retirement wealth. Registered	Published February 19, 2026.

	Retirement Savings Plans (RRSPs), Tax-Free Savings Accounts (TFSAs), and First Home Savings Accounts (FHSAs) are included. It concludes that the number of active RPP members has increased since the beginning of the century, with the number of women increasing faster than the number of men. It also shows that the number of active RPP members as a percentage of employees has decreased. The proportion of active RPP members in Defined Benefit plans has seen the steepest decrease. At the same time, tax-incentive vehicles show sustained interest from taxpayers, with TFSAs having become the preferred option over the past decade, capturing a growing share of contributions, while RRSPs have declined.

February 2026

OSFI periodically conducts benchmarking exercises of Canadian Systemically Important Banks' (SIBs) capital and profitability metrics as part of its mandate to assess both the resilience and competitiveness of the Canadian banking system. Conclusions drawn from the exercise include:

- Canadian SIBs are well-capitalized and have strengthened in recent years;
- OSFI's capital supervisory expectations are broadly consistent with international peers, notwithstanding lower binding requirements ;
- Canadian SIB capital ratios and risk weights are in line with international

Financing Risks

FATF has published a paper, Cyber-Enabled Fraud – Digitalisation and Money Laundering, Terrorist Financing and Proliferation Financing Risks, which outlines the latest emerging risks related to technological innovation and fraud. The paper calls for stronger implementation of global standards to tackle fraud, including through international cooperation and asset recovery, information sharing, and continuing to adapt to the risk environment and international resolve to address the issue. In particular, the paper discusses how the FATF Standards can be used to combat fraud, through:

- Payment transparency ;
- Asset recovery;
- Regulation of Virtual Assets;
- Unmasking Beneficial Ownership

It highlights how quickly repo markets were impacted in several recent episodes of market stress and warns that, given the importance of repo markets within the global financial	Published February 4, 2026. system, it is critical to preserve their functionality, particularly during periods of stress. It identifies vulnerabilities in repo markets that could pose risks to the broader financial system, and suggests several steps for authorities to consider in response to these vulnerabilities; these include:

- Closing data gaps;
- Strengthening surveillance capabilities; and
- Addressing vulnerabilities related to liquidity imbalances and leverage (this can include taking into account the FSB's recommendations on leverage in nonbank financial intermediation (NBFIs) and Global Securities Financing Transactions exercise, as well as other relevant
