As a law student with BLG, Chloe performs legal research, assists with contractual analysis and drafting, and supports lawyers across the firm with a wide variety of tasks.

Chloe has a particular interest in corporate and commercial law, with a focus on privacy, data protection and cybersecurity.

Before attending McGill University, Chloe gained invaluable experience as a Junior Professional Consultant with the International Organization for Migration (United Nations). In this role, she worked closely with refugees, internally displaced persons, and migrants affected by conflict, engaging in legal analysis, project development, and the implementation of awareness campaigns. This experience sharpened her analytical skills, in addition to her ability to navigate global legal frameworks.

After her first year of law school, Chloe completed an internship within Juripop's domestic and post-separation violence team, where she had the opportunity to conduct thorough legal research and participate in drafting both written and oral pleadings. This enhanced her research and advocacy skills, as well as her ability to develop strategic solutions for complex and sensitive cases.
